Framingham High School

115 "A" Street, Framingham, MA 01701

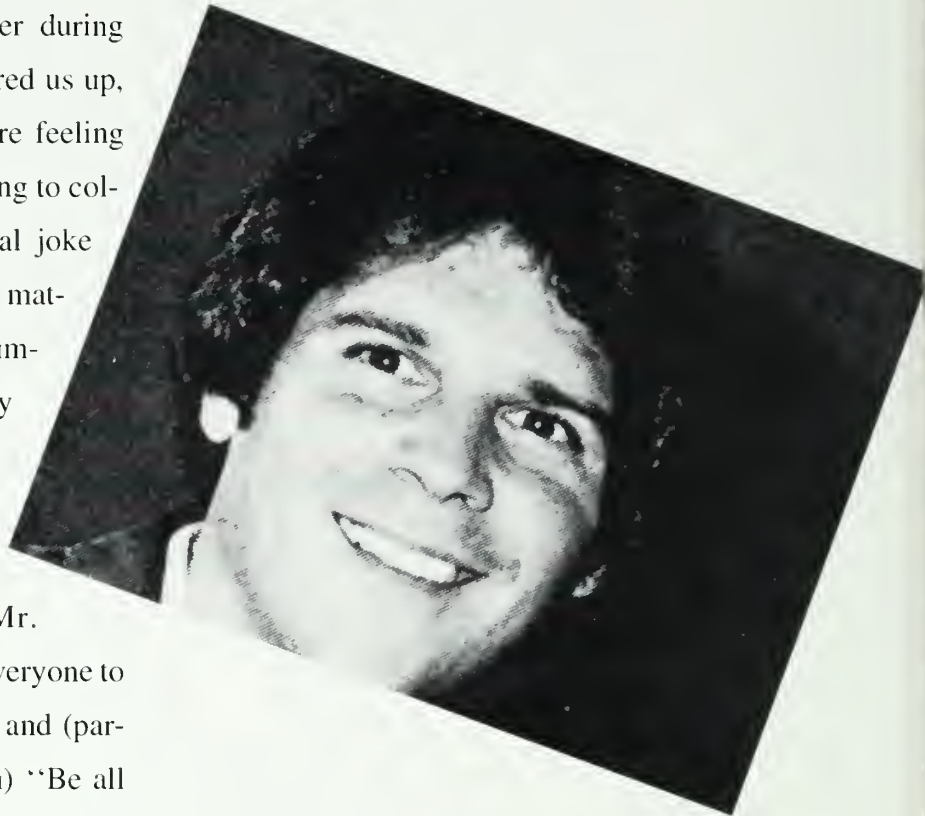

Dedication

Mr. Kropp became a pivotal character in the Class of 1999 during its senior year. The whole class loved and adored Mr. Badger, but after his retirement Mr. Kropp volunteered to be the new class administrator. During this time of change, Mr. Kropp enabled the senior class to grow from divided individuals to a cohesive group.

Mr. Kropp's outstanding personal characteristic always had a positive influence on the class of 1999.

His friendly chatter during lunch always cheered us up, even when we were feeling the stress of applying to college. An occasional joke in the hallway, no matter what the circumstances, was usually what someone needed to smile. The high standards Mr.

Kropp set forced everyone to take responsibility and (pardon the expression) "Be all that he could be." Under his encouragement and supervision, the Class of 1999 has reached its greatest potential.

Mr. Kropp was a strong supporter of athletics and other extra-curricular activities. It was easy to find

Mr. Kropp hanging in the halls with members of the athletic teams. Through his support of the Class of 1999 academically, socially, and emotionally, Mr. Kropp became a member of the graduating class.

Framingham High School is losing a great administrator. The gift of knowledge he has left Framingham High School and the Class of 1999 will forever be remembered. Good luck in all that you do, Mr. Kropp.

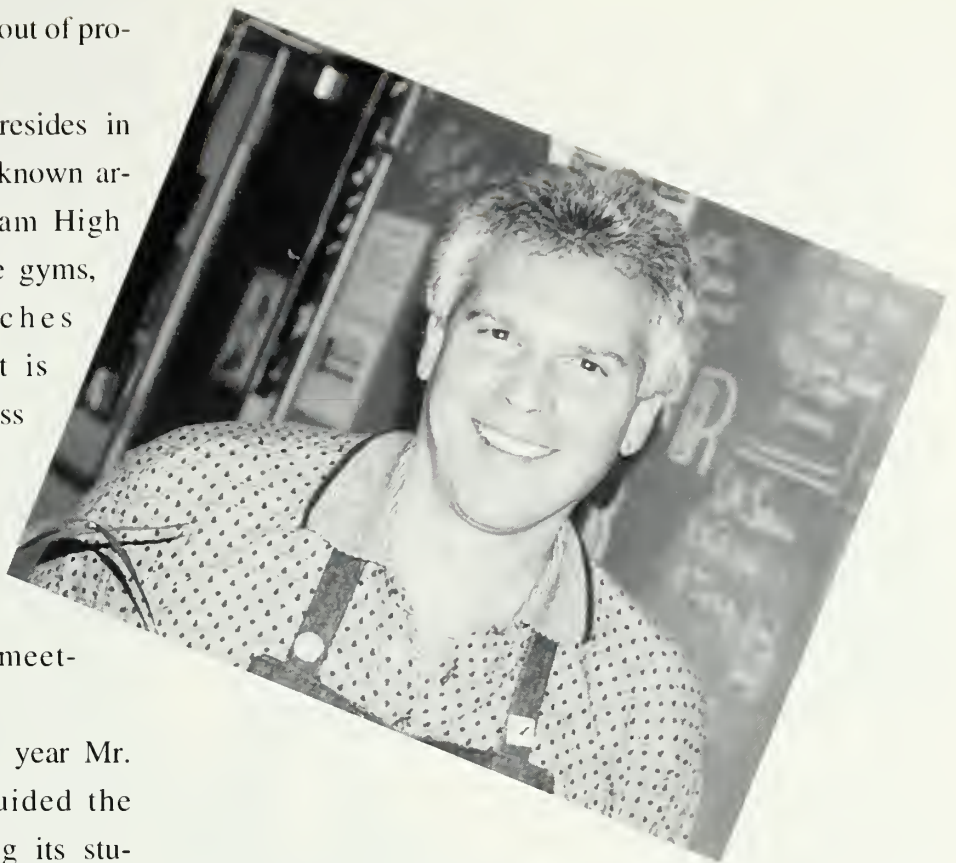

By Irene Sanchez, David Azarkh, and Noah Riseman

The name Richard Rebecchi is one that creates a sense of caring, support, involvement, and dedication. For the past four years, Mr. Rebecchi has been a mentor, advisor, and friend to the Class of 1999. In this time he has helped our class by setting the highest standards and exerting a positive, "magical" force. If one were to meet Mr. Rebecchi in person, he would come across as a jubilant and enthusiastic "wise-cracker." He can make anyone smile, see the good side of a horrible situation, and realize how teenagers blow events out of proportion.

Mr. Rebecchi resides in one of the lesser-known areas of Framingham High School, below the gyms, where he teaches Graphic Arts. It is there that the Class of 1999 flocks every Tuesday after school to hold its Steering Committee meetings.

Since freshman year Mr. Rebecchi has guided the class by providing its students with many opportunities to improve themselves and the community. His dedication and involvement shines each month as he leads students from Framingham High School to help the poor at the Salvation Army. Mr. Rebecchi believes in leaving legacies, and he has left a tremendous mark on the school and community.

Richard Rebecchi is and always will be a constant reminder of what real virtue is. Through the support he has put forth in all his endeavors, he has shown what it truly means to set goals and live up to them. His outstanding personality, in conjunction with his teaching skills, rightfully earned him the "Teacher of the Year" award in 1996. As a leader, teacher, and a friend, Mr. Rebecchi has created an aura of unity, and has helped the Class of 1999 live high school life to its fullest extent.

Morning Rush

For most students the day begins around six o'clock in the morning. The alarm clock rings, and they find themselves falling out of bed and onto the floor with a broken clock because they missed the snooze bar. In the end, of course, this is a good thing because those that didn't go through this morning routine instead have to wait in line for a late pass at the grade office with everyone else who overslept.

The seniors, and a few select juniors who are lucky enough to have their licenses early, hop into their cars and are off to school by way of the local Dunkin Donuts or the houses of a few friends.

Arrival time for most is approximately five past seven. At this point the herd of stampeding buffalo charge the front doors of the building and head straight for their lockers. Now is social time. If an outsider entered at this time, he might think he was looking at a nightclub without music. Many lounge around on the floor or in the intersection of C, D, and E hall so that no one may pass by. Others reserve this time to "gather their thoughts." (code for doing their homework in homeroom)

At 7:25 the bell for homeroom rings, and the teachers quickly grab their attendance sheets. This is the worst time to be in the hall. Students book it down the hallway to get to homeroom before the teacher marks them absent.

Finally, it's time for the early morning rush to drop its pace. The Flyer News brings us today's new and updates for after-school. Now it's time to go to first period. However, just before it's time to leave homeroom, if you listen carefully, you can hear that ubiquitous sigh. That's when you know the school day has truly begun.

Classroom Fever

Ring. There goes the bell; you're late again. You step up your pace, but you're located at the intersection of C, D, and E hall on the first floor, and as usual there's no room to move. Finally, you manage to push your way through, run up the stairs, and speed-walk to class. The teacher is at the door waiting for the late students. From now on you have to find an alternate route to this class, or else you'll end up in Saturday detention.

You go to your seat only to find that it has been occupied by another student. You find another seat but it's in the far back of the room away from your friends and the rest of civilization. You reluctantly take your seat and take out your notebook and . . . where's your pen? Oh, no! It's not there. Frantically, you search your back-pack only to find a long-lost pack of gum and seventy cents in change. You need a pen, so you ask the girl next to you for one, but unfortunately, she hands you a chewed-up Bic pen. You're desperate, so you suck it up and accept the pen.

The teacher begins class by giving a quick oral review of the chapter you have been working on the past week. She asks a question and chooses a student to answer it. With your luck you'll get a question that you have no clue what the answer is. After the brief review the teacher moves to her bag and pulls out a stack of papers.

A smile appears across her face as she takes the paper clip off the papers and hands them out. It's a surprise homework quiz; just a check to make sure you did your reading last night. "It's a cinch," she says. "As long as you did your reading, you'll be fine. Of course, if you didn't read, then you're in a bit of trouble." A look of fear comes across your face. You completely forgot about the reading. On second thought, perhaps your luck hasn't changed; it's just another case of classroom fever. Looking at the clock, you still have forty-five minutes to go until your next class. Oh, it's going to be another long day!

Lunch Break

Whether you have first, second or third lunch, you know that lunchtime is a very hectic time of the school day. There is always a table set up where students are running and selling fundraisers (dance tickets, show tickets, yearbooks, etc.) or doing sign-ups for activities (blood drive, voting, etc.) Forget leaving school for lunch this year; it is just not as easy to get away with that anymore. You can bring your own lunch, but if you leave it in your locker, the teachers guarding the doors won't let you out unless you explain your entire life story (forget going to the bathroom). If you buy lunch, you know that the lunch, deli and snack lines are always packed.

When you finally do get your lunch, you have the problem of finding a seat. This is a huge problem for freshmen who like to crowd one hundred people at one table. Everyone else generally eats at the same tables with the same people every day. Who says there are no cliques at FHS?

When you finally sit down, you can kick back, relax, and talk with your friends. Walking around the lunchroom, you can hear various conversations. Your table may be discussing that unfair pop quiz everyone failed last period, while the table next to you tries to figure out where the big party is this weekend.

The lunch atmosphere is definitely interesting and portrays the diversity of the school. To learn about FHS students, you should spend a good half an hour in the cafeteria.

The bell rings indicating the end of lunch, and you follow a stampede trying to get to your classroom. After cursing extensively about the literal traffic jams in the halls, you finally get yourself and your ten-pound backpack into class. You get to class about a minute late and the teacher suspects that you were out at McDonald's getting lunch. Oh well, another Saturday detention won't kill you.

The teacher begins class with a lecture, but you are too tired to listen because lunch went straight to your head, and you feel exhausted. You remember the words of Mr. Buell ringing through your head: you should have eaten some carbohydrates to get energized. Too bad they were serving turkey and gravy down in the cafeteria. Well, you put your head down on your desk and doze off when suddenly you hear a loud BANG! The teacher is hitting the desk with a yardstick telling you to wake up or you'll get another Saturday detention. You figure that you can't afford to spend another Saturday in school, so you decide to attempt to pay attention.

You constantly look up at the clock counting the minutes remaining in the class, but it seems that hours go by before the clock moves five minutes. You figure that if you can only survive this last class of the day, you'll be free to go home. You try to pay attention to the lecture but you find yourself staring off into space. Suddenly the teacher's voice is ringing in your ear, "Mr. John Doe, what is the molarity of a 1.5% isopropanol solution in one hundred mL of water?" Not knowing the answer, you try to finagle your way out of it by using the circular approach, telling everything you know about the information without answering the question. The teacher doesn't buy it and tells you to stay after class is over.

Finally, the bell rings which symbolizes the end of school. Unfortunately, you remember that you have to stay and talk with the teacher. After another five-minute lecture you are allowed to leave. As soon as you step into the hall, you get trampled by the football squad. After brushing yourself off, you smile realizing that school is over and you are free to leave.

You think to yourself and wonder, what's better — the first class of the day or the last class of the day? On one hand, you haven't completely awakened during the first period; however, after lunch, you can sense that school is over allowing you to slack off. After deciding that the last class of the day is definitely the worst one, you think of a valuable lesson that you learned that day: if you want to maintain some energy for the last class of the day, you should eat more carbohydrates and stop eating in the school cafeteria.

Post Mortem

As the 1:55 bell rings, you quickly pack up your bag. You head towards your locker wondering whether there is a steering committee or a SADD meeting at 2:00. You're involved in so many after-school activities you're confused about which meeting is each day. You know almost everyone will be after-school, participating in sports or clubs or just meeting with a teacher for extra help.

You are sure to find those who play sports heading toward the Booster's Room for that afternoon snack. If they're not busy eating a bagel, they're hanging around the locker rooms, changing and preparing themselves for games. If a game is not on the schedule, they're sure to be found at practice or just hanging out in the sports lobby while they wait for their coaches.

Of course, not everyone at FHS participates in sports. Many students get involved in any number of the many different clubs and committee. Whether you prefer community service or just helping out with class activities, there is a club where you can do what you want. And if there isn't, you can start one. Other students seek their teachers for help in understanding that concept that eluded them during the long block period when their mind was definitely somewhere else.

Then there are those students who dedicate hours after school each day to put together the school play. You will always find students working both onstage and off, whether they're rehearsing scenes or painting scenery.

As you can see, being in school for three fifty-five minute classes and two eighty-eight minute classes isn't enough for the students at FHS. School is always a busy place whether it's 8AM or 4PM. Participation and dedication are what students at Framingham High School are all about!

The Last Few Days

Although the 720 days of school always seemed repetitive to you, the day comes when your time is up at Framingham High School. With ten days left to go, you finally begin to realize how much the school has meant to you. You smile, tilt back your head, close your eyes, and suddenly . . .

You are a freshman again, on the first day of school, trying to open locker #E1007, not realizing you are in D-Hall. You wander about, dazed and confused, not wanting to pull out your map in front of the amused upperclassmen and even teachers who want to send you to the infamous third-floor pool.

This first memory brings back an onslaught of others, with blurred distinctions between the various years. You relive them as your reminiscence continues.

It's early September, and you are sitting at a window seat in Spanish class in A-Hall. "Oye Como Va" drifts in through the window (Perone's practicing the band again!) and adds harmony to Mr. Curnen's robust laugh. Señora throws a fit, but you are thoroughly entertained.

Then you are driving to school for the first time. You pound on the wheel and turn up that JamScam. Your friend Mike, whom you are driving to school, looked really grateful when you picked him up this morning, but now he looks a little green. Maybe you should have taken Driver's Ed after all . . .

You are sitting at your first rally as a senior. Mr. Olsen's raising the roof, Ben's dancing around in a pom's skirt, Roberto's clanging the cow-bell, and you're shouting "KROPP . . . KROPP . . . KROPP!" But this isn't how it always was . . . you remember sitting in the other three corners of the gym. Now, as a senior, you have a semi-philosophical thought . . . maybe the rally is the same no matter where you sit!

You arrive to school on October 27th. You are wearing a green leotard and orange knickers. Your bracelets are SlinkiesTM, your hair is parted and braided in twenty different ways, and your face is a swirl of face-paint colors. SENIOR WEEK, BAY-BEE! Three out of the four people who pass you in the hall stare at your outfit longingly, and you see your younger self reflected in their faces.

Then you take part in the most terrible school disappointment. John Travolta isn't coming to FHS after all. He can't blow up the pond if it's frozen!

You are in H125 the day before winter vacation. Allison is running around tearing her hair out: the blizzard is ruining the Holiday Drive! After you finish wrapping, you take a break and have a snowball fight behind the auditorium. Then you join the band in caroling, and end up serenading Noel Zinkievich. Then you walk home in knee-deep snow. When you were little you were amazed that every little snowflake had six sides, but now you realized that the snowflakes' shapes are perfect manifestations of the crystalline hydrogen bonding of water.

Later in the year you arrive to school on crutches — you twisted your ankle doing suicides for indoor track on the D-Hall stairs. Now you have to hurry to get to that third term vocab exam, so you take the lightning-speed glass elevator. Or you try to, at least, but when you set off the alarm, you quickly limp up the stairs.

Then you are at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston on a field trip for French, checking out the spectacular Monet in 20th Century exhibit. Does school get any better than this?

It does! Now you're in the school cafeteria, peacefully eating your lunch and pondering the SENIORS — 4 DAYS sign. It isn't peaceful for long — the freshmen table starts a food fight. At first you are astounded, and merely watch the perfect projectiles or milk cartons, pizza slices, bananas, caramel pudding, and French fries. Then you fight back mercilessly, but a few minutes later you realize it's probably better to take cover under the table.

Then it's the seniors' last day of school — you have a free period, so you go to the auditorium doors and watch the hour-long spectacle of madness. One hundred cars honk at one hundred decibels, and streamers and shaving cream fly and float through the breeze. The sun shines brightly, and . . .

You are finally shocked out of your reverie. Almost in tears now, you recognize that you will be miserable for quite awhile after you leave 115 "A" Street. In a few days you will be only a memory to the classes of the new millennium.

Time's Up

It's 8:00 at night; school is long over, practice has ended, you're getting home from work. Whatever your scenario is, you are probably pooped out, at home, ready to crash in your bed. Unfortunately, you suddenly realize that you have a major oral in Spanish class tomorrow. Your English teacher assigned you thirty pages and an essay for class tomorrow. Your major Chemistry lab is due tomorrow and you don't know what to do.

The bottom line is your day is far from over. It's time to break out the coffee and hit the books. Telephone lines are now opened, for you will need lots of help in doing your work. By 10:00 you have finished just about nothing! Yet, you still feel compelled to watch that great episode of "ER" on next. So, you decide to take a break from your work. You promise yourself it will only be for an hour . . .

It's 11:00 at night, and you still have plenty of homework left. That's when your best friend calls to ask a "real quick" question. You don't even realize how long you've been talking until 11:45 when you look up at the clock. Immediately you get off the phone to finish your work . . .

At midnight it is time for another break. This time, you think you will go online just to check your mail. Little do you know that your significant other is online, and you are suddenly invited into a chat-room. By 1:00 you are too exhausted to type at the computer anymore. You promise yourself that you will read that English assignment. Before you know it, your alarm is buzzing at 6:00 A.M. and you are waking up. You never finished any of the homework. Oh, well . . . time's up!

WHY WE DIDN'T REMOVE SADDAM

A Time To Work A Time To Play

For the first time this year, the yearbook staff has decided to combine the Activities with the Academics section. There are several motives for this departure from traditional yearbook style, but the primary one is that the staff at Framingham High School is intimately connected with the extracurricular activities of the students. Behind every fundraiser, trip, and competition is an extraordinarily dedicated advisor. Another motive is to adjust to the changes that have whipped through our school in the past year. Most of the major reorganization has occurred because the school is now under the direction of a new principal, Mr. Olsen. He has instituted stricter rules and higher standards; he has also created an excellent student rapport. The faculty has also undergone a shift in countenance — one can see a variety of fresh faces in the teachers' rooms. This has meant new teaching styles for periods which seem to be getting longer and longer. Changes have also occurred in the way clubs are viewed at FHS. Thanks to Flyer News, every club is able to obtain high visibility. Once students become aware of what a club is doing, they are very likely to support the cause. One example of this is the success of the Latin American Relief fund, which was set up by Latinos en Acción. With the whole school rallying behind the fund, they were able to raise over two thousand dollars. The greatest change has been education reform. This year "time on task" studies have been established as a way to meet standards while giving students leeway. The MCAS results have come in, with great significance for the entire student body. February and April vacations are back, at the cost of extra time at the end of the year. Even with so much ahead and so much to plan for, Framingham High School is providing the turn of the century classes with exciting opportunities. Classes range from Crafts to Biotechnology, and clubs range from Model UN to Community Service — there is definitely something for everyone. Academics and activities provide the foundation for the careers of the new millennium.

Dear Senior Class:

It is my sincere pleasure to serve as Principal of Framingham High School during your graduation year. This year's senior class will be the final graduates of the twentieth century.

My introductory statement to you at our orientation meeting was "so goes the senior class, so goes the school." The positive feelings I had then are being validated. Your class has outstanding leaders and is supporting them with positive energy and enthusiasm.

The class of 99's academic achievement and co-curricular involvement have been impressive. Each individual has had the opportunity to demonstrate his or her own special strengths. You've established standards for incoming classes and served as fine models for future students.

As we approach the millennium there are key words which represent your final year; they include: new teachers, higher educational standards, no studies, a bizarre schedule, Saturday detention, more requirements, improving sports, Officer Bennie, radical spirit and the Kropp chant at pep rallies. You've not only survived—you've grown.

Face life's challenges with focus, honesty, energy, a respect for others and the ability to laugh at yourself. I hope your memories of Framingham High School are positive.

I appreciate the opportunity to have worked with each of you. May you fulfill your dreams.

Best wishes, good health, success and happiness.

Giving Back to the Community

At the forefront of community service at Framingham High is the Community Service Class, led by Mr. Charles Sposato. Through reading essays from Thoreau, Martin Luther King Jr., and others, the first year class has recognized the importance of taking action to patch the holes in the fabric of society. Together, the class worked to create a Halloween for Hunger food drive and other drives throughout the semester long class. Every student in the class has individual programs that provide a wide range of services including food for the homeless, tutorials to elementary students, and social opportunities for bilingual students.

The Key Club requires its members to do one hour of community service each week in activities such as homeless services and collects money for General Cinema's Jimmy Fund effort every summer. The senior class has served dinner every month at the Salvation Army. Clubs like Amnesty In-shelters, nursing homes, and tutorials. The National Honor Society also provides tutoring international and the Environmental Club also help the community effort in Framingham.

N.H.S. runs the school's annual Holiday Drive that invites the entire student body to provide food, clothes, and toys for individual families and elderly in Framingham. The Walk for Children, March of Dimes, Relay for Life, L.E.A., Walk for Hunger, and Central American Relief efforts have been extremely successful fund-raising activities.

Good luck to the community service class in its future efforts, and also thanks to students at Framingham High who have helped make service fun as well as effective.

Spotlight on the Drama Club

This has been a great year for the Drama Club, one filled with growth and change. A record number of new faces packed into the music room for the first meeting of the year. The excitement was palpable as the club was introduced to Ms. Donna Wresinski, the new director for both the fall and spring musicals. Donna's infectious energy spread like wildfire, and the fall musical, Godspell, was born. This 60's rock musical retells the Gospel through comic improvisation, song and dance.

The winter brought field trips to see shows such as Blue Man Group and Ragtime, as well as community service. The winter drama, Twelve Angry Men and Women, was a serious psychological drama. Fine performances by the small cast and the talented director, Kevin Baldwin, made this play a great success.

Right on its heels was the beginning of rehearsals of Fame, the spring musical. The Drama Club would like to thank Ms. McPherson and to congratulate her on the birth of her son Dante. We would also like to thank Mr. Perro-ne, Donna Wresinski, Karen Andrews, Kevin Baldwin, Mr. Bruni and Mr. Olsen. The club also owes thanks to its officers, Ali Lemoine, Jake Lewis, Kitty Royce-Tolland and Ben Little, as well as all the Drama Club members for a wonderful year.

And the Winner Is . . .

Every year, the students receive the chance to honor their favorite teachers. As the ballots reach homeroom in November, all sophomores, juniors, and seniors cast three votes for "Teacher of the Year." Of the votes received, nine finalists and a winner are selected. Previous winners have included Mr. Barbieri, Mr. Sposato, Mr. Maiorano, and Mr. Rebecchi.

This year's winner was the Business Department's Ms. Smith. After thirty-nine and a half years at Framingham High School, Ms. Smith will go out in style as the 1998-1999 Teacher of the year. Upon receiving the award, Ms. Smith said, "I was thrilled because the recognition came from the kids."

Smith enjoys teaching with a passion. As an accounting and keyboard teacher, Smith has enjoyed interacting with the various students. Her favorite part of teaching is, "Knowing that the skills I teach them will be beneficial to them throughout life."

Ms. Smith will miss Framingham High School, but she has left every teacher with a strong message. "Have a passion for what you do and make your focus the kids in your classroom."

Fly

It's 7 a.m. and most students are rolling out of bed or halfway through their morning routine. However, there are a few brave souls already at school, running around like chickens with their heads cut off. You can hear the yells of Mr. Devlen (executive producer) asking where the stories are, if the scores are in the scoreboard, or maybe the most dreaded question of all: "WHERE THE HECK IS THE TALENT!?"

As I walk in, I dodge Mr. Devlen. He's flying around making sure everyone is doing his job. No wonder we call it "Flyer" news. I drop my bag in the normal camera shots, which look fine. Teachers and students enter with scores and announcements. "Is there room for this in story 4?" "Where can we put Principal Olsen?"

Five minutes to show time and the microphones have just been

checked. The footage is cued. Or so we hope. The audio cord is plugged in and the switch is flipped. The director gives his commands and everything is flowing smoothly. The director is surprisingly calm; the eye of the storm, so to speak. The news runs almost flawlessly and Mr. Devlen runs out and shakes the hands of the talent. He enters the control room again and exclaims how great the show was.

It may not seem like a way you would want to start your morning but for many it's just part of our morning routine. Some students need the caffeine from their morning coffee and the rest of us just need the daily rush of adrenaline that is known as Flyer News.

Lending a Helping Hand

For many years FHS has held an annual holiday drive in order to assist needy families in the community during the holiday season. Led by their faculty advisor, Mr. Quinn, students of all grades collect cans of food, clothing, and presents for a specified family in their homeroom each morning. Not only is this event helpful for the families involved, but it is helpful for others in need as well. All the clothes not taken by the families is then donated to the Salvation Army. The holiday drive provides an opportunity for the whole community to bind together in a warm atmosphere where everyone benefits.

First, committee chairs write to local businesses for donations. At this time, the homeroom representatives scurry to their homerooms with donuts to motivate the students to contribute. On the night before vacation begins, members of the food and toy committees hurry to either Toys R Us or BJ's in order to buy various items for all the families.

For this event many of the clubs located at FHS add their efforts. The Key Club handles a very important part of the Holiday Drive by gathering all the materials needed for those elderly people that are being helped.

Investing for the Future

The Investment Club competes against other investment clubs throughout the United States and Canada in the CNBC Student Stock Tournament on the Internet.

In its first year of existence, the Investment Club has experienced a lot of success. During the first term, FHS fielded one team that made over $60,000 on a hypothetical $100,000 investment. This was a gain of over 60% in only three months and was good enough for 17th place amongst a total of 3,400 competitors. The team was featured on CNBC television for their accomplishments and was the focus of an article in the local newspaper. Team leader Chris Muscarella was even sponsored to attend an investment seminar in Boston to learn more about investment opportunities.

The success of the first term team spurred greater interest in the club. As a result, FHS was able to field seven different teams in the tournament during the second term of the year. Each team was hoping for the same success as the first term team. Time will tell if we have any future stock brokers in our midst.

Benvenuti in Italia

Ding Dong! With these two words a group of thirty FHS students, led by chaperones Ms. Figueroa, Ms. Satlak and Mr. Dubois, was ready to go. The group went during the last two weeks of last June. They arrived in Milan to be greeted by the infamous tour guide, Gian Paulo. Over ten days, the group proceeded to visit the cities of Venice, Florence, Rome, as well as the Vatican, and the ruins of Pompeii.

Venice was a breathtaking sight. Students rode in gondolas, the famous boats of the Venetian canals, around the magnificent city.

According to Dave Azarkh, Rome was not the most beautiful of all the cities that the group visited, but seeing the ruins of the ancient Roman Forum, the exuberant Trevi Fountain and the breathtaking site of the Colosseum was reportedly unforgettable. The group spent two extra days visiting Pompeii and the Vatican. Pompeii, which was destroyed by the volcanic eruption of Mount Vesuvius, was a thrilling site. The Vatican was a very religious experience for many individuals, and the beauty of the Sistine Chapel and St. Peter's Church were inexpressible.

Top Ten Things to Do in Italy

10. Make sure you carry a water bottle with you at all times, because the climate in Italy is extremely hot and dry.

9. Make sure you know how to drive a standard vehicle so your car doesn't stall at every intersection.

8. Don't lose your passport.

7. When in Rome, don't try to find Kosher restaurants, because you run a great risk of getting lost.

6. When visiting Venice, buy some bread crumbs to feed the multitude of pigeons, especially Freddy.

5. Remember that instant mashed potatoes, green beans, and croissants are actually Italian foods.

4. Remember that the Italian word for you're welcome is PREGO, not RAGU.

3. When crossing the street, make sure that you watch for runaway buses coming straight at you.

2. Scream the names of Italian soccer players (i.e. B-A-G-G-I-O) in order to be well-liked by the Italian natives. 1. Remember that there is no drinking age.

UNDERCLASSMEN

Passing The Torch

The underclassmen at Framingham High School play a crucial part in the success of the school. All of the underclassmen represent one particular thing, the future. As seniors, we can look back to our underclassman years in order to look at our pasts. Don't forget that it was not that long ago when we were told that the bathrooms are on the third floor next to the pool. In order for us to understand the present, we must understand the past, which is symbolized by our years of being underclassmen. It is hard to imagine, but all of us were underclassmen at one time or another, and next year we will return to being underclassmen at distinct locations. There is a famous saying which states that "The children of today, are the leaders of tomorrow." Well, in the same sense, the underclassmen of today are the seniors of tomorrow. Within our school, one cannot help but have a feeling of negativity towards the underclassmen. The freshmen are considered to be extremely immature, the sophomores are not given much attention, and the juniors gain some respect from the senior class by the end of the year. Let these few pages be a reminder to everyone of the importance contained within our underclassmen. In society, the rich individuals cannot create million dollar corporations without the help of the workers who do the dirty work. Well, the underclassmen are the ones who do the dirty work in our school, and the senior class would not be able to exist without their help. It is very comical to look back at our days as underclassmen and laugh at ourselves. Walking around the school with maps, not realizing that F-Hall is actually connected to the rest of the school, carrying all of our books in our bags, are all memories of our underclassman years. Looking back, the underclassman days were the fun ones at FHS. By the time that we become seniors, we stress about SAT's and colleges. Everyone should be happy being underclassmen, because that is the time to work but also have some fun. Looking at these few pages, one can see how much fun we had as underclassmen and how we have grown up both physically and mentally over the years. Let these pages remind you of the past and allow them to show you what the future holds for the success of Framingham High School. This section is dedicated to the underclassmen of FHS who have contributed to the success of the school and who will hopefully lead the school in the upcoming years.

WHERE IS THE SWIMMING POOL

Most eighth-graders look toward freshman year with apprehension — they've heard stories about getting egged at rallies, being directed to the pool on the third floor, and wading through piles of homework. Seniors look at freshmen as the students they can have a little fun with, and teachers perhaps are not so fond of the incoming class. However, despite the bad rap, freshman year is without a doubt the finest year of high school.

The journey through high school began at Freshman Orientation. You listened to your vice-principal lecture for an inordinate amount of time about re-spons-a-bility, and then you took a tour with an upperclassman leading the way. After the walk down H-Hall, you were completely and utterly lost. Each time you passed an office or other important looking room, the tour guide mumbled some snide comment which increased your fright. By the time you reached home, you were terrified about surviving in such a mammoth school.

Despite your initial fear, the first week of school was better than you had ever imagined (even if your schedule did have a few glitches). Upperclassmen were helpful and even grudgingly friendly, teachers were often lenient, and your friends were able to find you at lunch.

Life was good when you were a freshman. Those were the days . . . half an hour of homework, gym classes, four hour phone conversations, bedtime at nine o'clock, wild parties, and senior boys. From the Welcome Freshman Dance to the first rally, you knew you were really the center of attention. Everything was fresh and exciting; maybe you didn't jump for joy when you had to wake up at six every morning, but you certainly loved the variety of people and classes. Above all, the stress-free environment enabled you to relax and enjoy the ride.

If nothing else, freshman year was fabulous simply because it was riddled with anticipation. Within a few years, you would have a license, a car, a prom, and a graduation. You would finally be on your own.

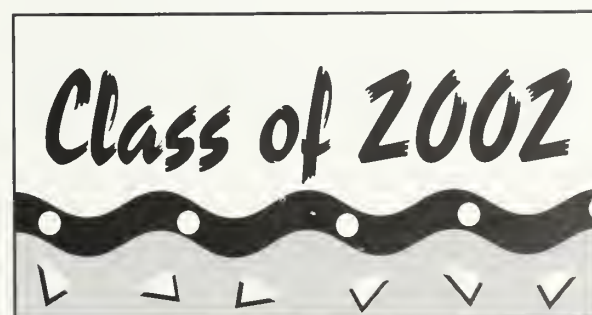

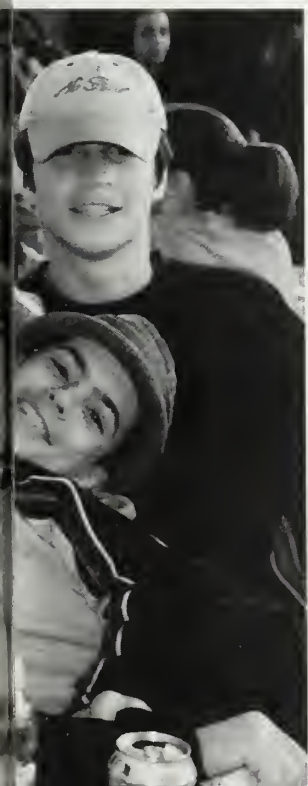

As high school flew by, you remembered that marvelous freshman year and yearned for a chance to relive it. With any luck, you'll have one more shot!

Class of 2001

THE YEAR OF THE WISE FOOLS

You will never be called a "Stupid Freshman" ever again. You will not mind being late to class ever again. You are now a sophomore, the "Wise Fools" of the school. Life is grand — yeah right.

Chemistry class should be a breeze. You had an excellent year in biology. Unfortunately, the first thing your teacher says is, "This is not biology. This is more difficult than biology. If you don't keep up, you will fail." By the time you leave the first class, you are so terrified of the teacher that you never want to go back. You go back to the class and begin to learn. The very first thing you are required to learn is your ions. You try your hardest, but you cannot memorize those ions. Every day your teacher screams at you, "If you knew your ions, you wouldn't be having these problems." You move on to the next unit — moles.

Who cares that a mole is 6.02×10^{23} of something? Your teacher is evil, you don't understand anything, and you are getting a "D." But who cares? You can handle this... life is grand... you are not a stupid freshman anymore.

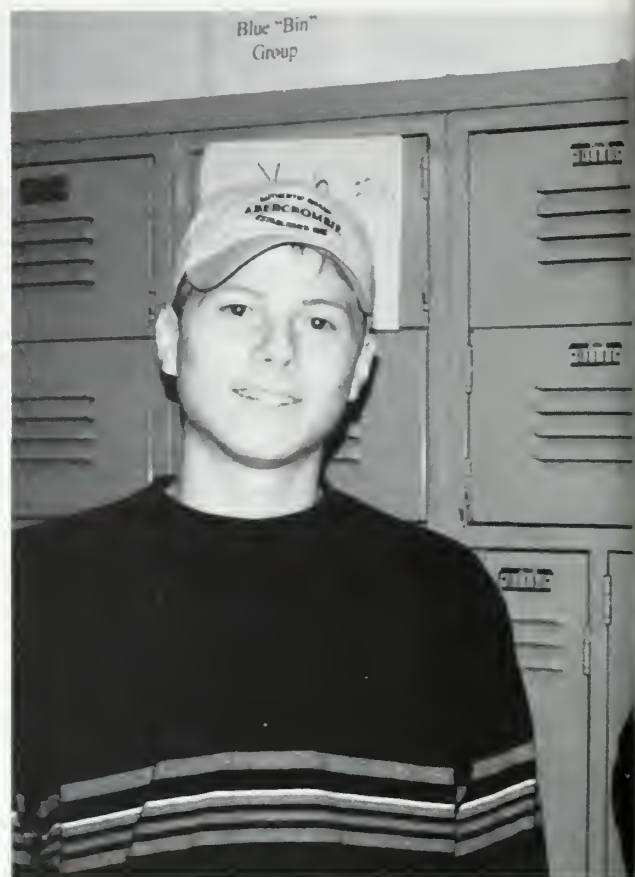

All sophomores take health. Soon you realize that you already took this same exact course twice in middle school. You get to learn all sorts of facts about your body and the effects of other agents on it. Your teacher is very picky about tardiness, which gets irritating. Even if you have a pass, your teacher records how late you enter the room. Once you miss enough class time to make a class, you must make it up after school, or it will be counted as an absence. Of course, nobody, not even the student who missed a total of ten classes, ever makes the time up after school. Then, you get a really tough final exam, which does not make much sense considering how easy the class is. You can handle this... life is grand... you are not a stupid freshman anymore.

Despite these teachers, you have a relatively stress-free life. Unfortunately, you are not old enough to have a license. But, you do get a learner's permit and feel so excited that now you can drive a motor vehicle. Despite waiting for your parents for rides, you can enjoy the things offered by the class. For instance, you can still go to the Ring Dance in April. Also, you have other things to concern yourself with, like the PSAT in October and the MCAS in May. Don't worry, you are a sophomore... you can handle this... life is grand... you are not a stupid freshman anymore.

Stress Year

Boyz to Men

The life of a junior at Framingham High School is filled with hardships and constant obstacles. Like every other year, your junior year is the most important during the high school years. You arrive at school in your rumbling car, thanking God that it did not break down on the way to school. You get out of the car and proceed to walk two miles to school passing the beautiful scenery of the tennis courts and the baseball field. You finally enter the school building with an arrogant attitude, because you are finally an upperclassman. Too bad that the seniors do not feel that way about you. The saying goes, "Once a freshman, always a freshman." However, the seniors are an exception to that rule.

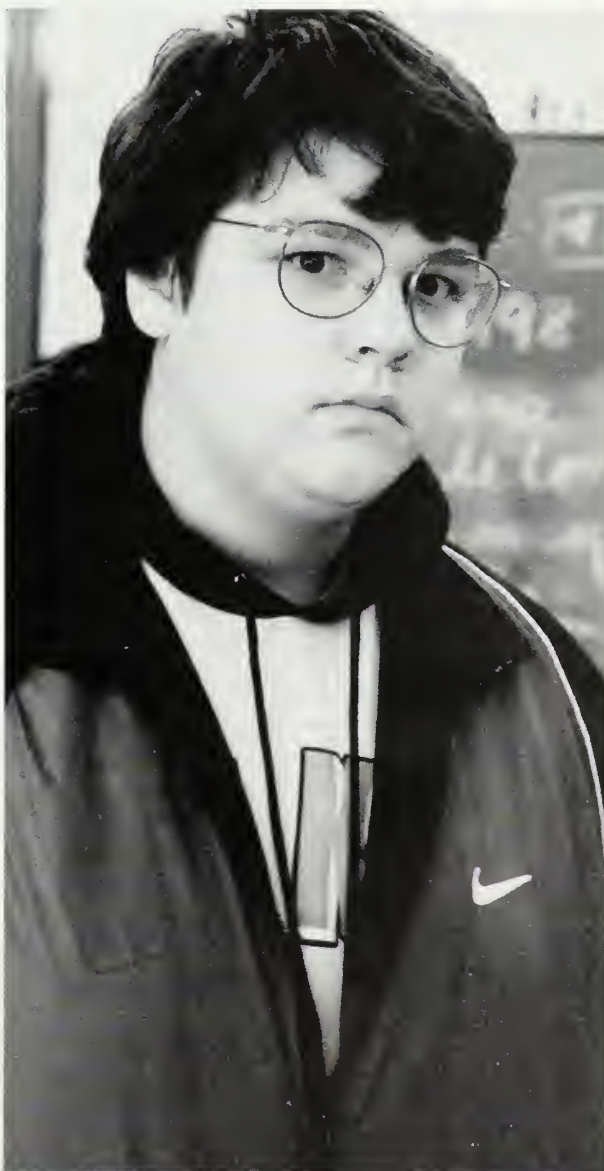

You go to first period, where you are glad to be playing with circuits and drawing vectors. You are also shocked that the physics teacher is nice enough to give out jolly ranchers during class. After surviving physics class, you are off to your world language class. You spend the period hearing a variety of police stories and trying to master the three hundred forms of a particular verb. During this period, you make sure to eat a couple of power bars in order to gain energy for the hike to English class. You arrive to English class a minute late, and the teacher threatens to take sixty points off your term grade, one point for each second that you missed.

You spend the period writing an in-class essay, and with ten minutes left in class, the teacher decides to give you another seven minute essay. As if that were not enough, you proceed to your first AP class of your high school career--United States history. You listen to the teacher lecture for most of the period and then try to figure out what a DBQ is. After the period's end, you decide to go out for lunch. You are able to get lunch at Burger King without getting caught; however, you are amazed when an administrator stops you in the hall for wearing a Burger King crown (whoops!). You finish off the day with advanced math, which is really just a fancy name for a review of Algebra II with an addition of trigonometry. After listening to an hour-long lecture, the bell rings, symbolizing the end of the school day.

Being a junior, you realize that this is your last chance to impress colleges with your after-school involvement. You join many clubs and sports at FHS, and you finally leave the school to go home around five in the afternoon. You get home only to find yourself swamped with homework. After finishing your English portfolio at three in the morning and cursing at your English teacher, you think about your upcoming weekend. With SAT's on Saturday and homework on Sunday, you realize that junior year is the "Hell Year." You decide to relax by reading a fabulous book entitled Chicken Soup for the Teenage Soul. Ah ha, today's moral lesson: Don't sweat the small stuff. How ironic!

SENIORS

The Final Hour

The class of 1999 has certainly been a class of firsts and lasts. Although we have often been the "guinea pig" class, we have overcome with much work and perseverance. At last we have arrived at the final hour. Over the years we lost many of our privileges that were enjoyed by the previous classes. Studies were eliminated and block schedules initiated. The "closed campus policy" was strictly enforced, and juniors could no longer park behind the gyms. As juniors, we thoroughly enjoyed the ten mile hike to the school from the Winch parking lot. Finally, we had to cope with the losses of our beloved grade administrator, Mr. Badger, and our caring principal, Mr. Flaherty. We even lost Mrs. Robblee to the class of 2003. With all of these changes, our class continues to persevere. Even though the Olsen regime has set stricter policies within the school such as the hiring of a police officer, we have achieved so much as a class. Thanks to Ben Korenstein, Scott Sigel, Alexandra Vera, Anna Rivoir-Pruszinski, and the rest of the steering committee, we have kept ourselves in a stable financial state. Some of our money came from the Flyer Card, which our class revived. We have given back to the community by serving at the Salvation Army and donating books to veterans. Our class started the Walk for Children, which contributes annually to the Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Metrowest. We helped freshmen by implementing the Seniors Helping Freshmen program. Our Ring Dance and Cotillion were both incredible successes. Our football players made it possible for us to win the Thanksgiving game on our own turf for the first time in over two decades. In every way, we have made a name for ourselves. Although technically we are not the last class of the millennium, we are the last class to have a "1" at the beginning of our graduation year. We are also the last class to leave school before the underclassmen. For this and for all that we have done, we will be fondly remembered. We have all come a long way to be who we are today. We have led the school in exemplary fashion throughout the years. As a class, we have built a bridge into the twenty-first century for the rest of the school to cross. This section is dedicated to the graduating class of 1999, whose successes and achievements will be remembered for a long time to come.

Steering Ahead

The senior class steering committee has gone above and beyond the boundaries established by a typical class representative body. It has not only successfully planned the major dances and fund-raisers throughout the high school years such as the Ring Dance, Cotillion, School Dance, Prom, Flyer Card sale, and carnation sale, but it has been instrumental in preparing the class of 1999 to become leaders promoting class and school spirit.

The steering committee has had over one hundred members in attendance at meetings, a school record. As juniors, the class made over five thousand dollars from the Flyer Card fund-raiser and the carnation sale. At the Ring Dance and Cotillion, almost two-thirds of the class was in attendance. This year, with the surging magazine drive and the powder puff football game, the senior class is confident that the Prom and Senior Week will be as successful.

As teenagers committed to making a difference in the school, the seniors created the first petition to lengthen school vacations, as well as the first underclassmen mentoring program. The program first entitled J.U.M.P., (Juniors Underclassmen Mentoring Program) renamed Seniors Helping Freshmen, was a tremendous success. One hundred and twenty people participated in the event, which featured personalized tours of the school, an activity fair, and a three-week homeroom question and answer period. As a result, the freshmen had an easier transition to high school, allowing them to excel immediately.

The class of 1999 has led by example throughout high school. At the fall rally this year, seniors demonstrated their tremendous leadership by creating one of the best rallies ever at Framingham High School. As the senior class departs from high school, it leaves behind a legacy of both academic and extra-curricular excellence igniting a desire to make a difference in future schools and communities.

Senior Spirit Week

The seniors at Framingham High School have a fabulous tradition of displaying their pride in their school; they throw themselves head over heels into Senior Spirit Week. For the class of '99, Senior Spirit Week was a phenomenal success.

Monday's display of blue and white made all students proud to be part of FHS, but the parade of blue and white clothing was just the beginning. Face paint, glitter, and body paint transformed some of our best sportsmen into Smurfs and let everyone know how the class of '99 feels about FHS. Despite showing the school that they know how to coordinate colors on Blue and White Day, the seniors displayed incredibly bad taste on Crazy Day. Dressed in some out-of-this-world outfits and wearing wacky accessories, they turned the hallways into fashion eyesores.

On Decade Day, the last class of the twentieth century reminded everyone what a great century this has been. Hippies mingled with Cyndi Lauper look-a-likes while the sudden popularity of the Afro hairstyle made the crowded hallways claustrophobic. Toga Day proved that European history class pays off when seniors' togas did not fall off. Finally, on Friday the class of '99 went all out in celebration of Halloween for Costume Day.

As well as being an opportunity for the seniors to be recognized, Senior Spirit Week provided fun and excitement for the senior class. In addition to giving everyone something to laugh about, the week brought the graduating class together before the seniors go their separate ways. For the last class of the twentieth century, our seniors went out in style!

Time to Shine- Senior Superlatives

Each year, seniors are chosen by their peers for their best attributes. This year the sixteen categories were chosen by the yearbook staff and the ballots were distributed to each senior homeroom. Each senior had the opportunity to vote and participate in the excitement of superlatives. Individuals who won were those who stood out from the crowd for being Most Athletic, Most Comical, and so forth . . .

These superlatives allow the seniors to be represented for all their hard work throughout their four years at Framingham High School. Superlatives are a great way to recognize the members of the class of 1999 for their unique contribution to the class. Whether the individuals provided their peers with spirit or kept their class laughing, they won the superlatives because they earned them.

SPORTS

When Seconds Count

Framingham High School has always had a history of athletic success. The cheerleading squad seems to win the national championship every year, both boys and girls soccer teams always appear to be contending for the state title, as well as the boys and girls swimming teams. All of the sports teams at FHS are considered to be the toughest in the Bay State Conference. This year has been even more special because the Flyer football team finally defeated the Natick Redmen at Bowditch Field. FHS takes great pride in the accomplishments of all of our athletes. The enthusiasm and determination to win begins with the success of the rallies at FHS. The cheerleaders and poms squads, as well as the mysterious Fleagle ignite the crowd, which seems to boost the athletes' will to win. From the chants of "Beat Natick" to Lou Merloni's motivational speech, Framingham High School stands behind and supports all its athletic teams. Spectators are seen at all of the athletic competitions. From the freezing tundra of Bowditch Field to the sunny tennis courts of FHS, fans are seen throughout. The enthusiasm of the fans creates a very competitive atmosphere, urging our athletes to win. The FHS sports teams have an aura of heart, pride, and determination about them. Because of this, every competitor must be prepared for a tough, hard battle against the Flyers. The sports programs at the school are not only concerned with winning games, but they teach the participants how to carry themselves with class and dignity, in victory as well as defeat. Within the high school, some sports do not receive the same recognition as others. The Flyers Football team receives much more recognition than the drastic improvement of the Golf team. Thus, this section allows everyone to share in the success of all Flyers teams. Every Flyer team has something unique about it, which is expressed within this section. The world of sports has evolved from the sadistic gladiator fights of the Romans, to the sports that we see on television today. It seems that no professional athlete is satisfied with how many millions he is making. Our athletes are obviously not paid for playing sports, because they compete due to their pure love for the game. They are not worried about multi-million dollar contracts and Nike commercials, because they are concerned with winning their next game. As a school, we are extremely proud of all of our athletes, and this section is dedicated to all Flyer athletes. Your enthusiasm, pride, and determination throughout the seasons has allowed the Framingham High School sports program to flourish over the years.

Running to Victory

For the boys cross-country team, this year presented many challenges for the team to overcome. Many meets were decided by only a few points and often the races came down to the last few spots. The girls experienced similar frustration. At the start of the season, the team was small and inexperienced, with runners short of breath after only one mile. However, the team pulled itself together nicely with a group of 12 girls who were ready to work hard. Practice paid off as both teams experienced vast improvement throughout the year.

The boys team was led by Coach Ron Pereira and senior captains Brian Hanley and Scott Sigel while Coaches Jeff Gaglione and Melissa Panchuck and Captains Annie Hall, Julie Thayer and Heather Fishman guided the girls. Despite losing records, both teams had great individual successes. Deidre Baugh, Julie Thayer, Angela Odems, Kristin Skinner, Karen Moore, and Talia Poncz were all standouts for the girls team. Major contributors for the boys team included Phil Pakulat, Jared Goralnick, Gabe Cantor, Jason Prelack, Tom Bannon, and Kevin Quinlan.

Both teams look to returning runners for a great season next year. Congratulations everyone on a fantastic season!

A Season of Ups and Downs

After losing ten seniors from last year's team, the Flyers knew that they had a tough season ahead of them. They rode an emotional roller coaster, losing many games by only one goal. However, the Flyers proved themselves worthy of a spot in post-season play.

Seeded 16th in the tournament, the Flyers had to play number one seed, Danvers, in the first round. After the first half, Framingham was down 4-0, but this team would not give up. Courtney Abatsis netted two goals in the second half, the greatest number of goals that had been scored against Danvers all season. Although they were defeated, the Flyers were able to walk off the field with their heads held high.

Next year the Flyers will miss senior captains Jess Stefanini and Allie Salvi as well as seniors Danielle Barss, Courtney Abatsis, Devon Dopfel, Jami Brownstein, Rachel Katz, Brooke Pollock, Jamie Shannon, and Melissa Siegal.

The Flyers look toward a talented group of underclassmen to step up next year and help lead Field Hockey to a tournament spot. Good luck Flyers, spark it up!

Victories to Be Thankful For Entering this season, the Flyer Football team was often described as "young and inexperienced." With a new coach and a young quarterback, improving on last year's 2-9 record might have even proved difficult. But these Flyers showed their resilience, finishing the season with a record of 4-7.

The Flyers opened the season with some tough losses; however, they rebounded the second half of the season, responding with several wins, including a 34-21 victory over Natick, their first Thanksgiving Day win at Bowditch since 1970.

In this final game, Chad Sexton threw for three touchdown passes in the first half, and sophomore running back Calvin Hodge rushed for 147 yards in the second half as the Flyers scored the game's final 14 points. The entire team contributed in an incredible victory over a talented Natick team.

The Flyers have shown a lot of promise this year. Coach Gary Doherty has set the foundation for success. The team will miss its seniors next year, especially Captains Jim Brown and Marquis Harris-Turner. A great group of underclassmen will hopefully lead the Flyers to a winning record next season.

On the Rise

The Boys Golf team, led by Captains Mike Rork, Bobby Gross, and Mike Albert, started the year with one of the best records Coach Chester Garron has ever coached. At 5-3 after their first eight matches, the Flyers seemed to have a good chance of making the tournament for the first time in several years. However, the team didn't play as well the rest of the season, finishing with a record of 6-9.

Stick and Rork provided positive leadership and determination for this inexperienced team comprised mainly of underclassmen. However, some of the younger members including Keith and Kyle Kelley, Scott Bruce, Stats, and Jason Vanbuskirk did step it up a notch as the season progressed. Unfortunately the team's 6-9 record proved to be just short of making the tournament.

Exceeding Expectations

As the 1998 season got underway, the members of the varsity squad had nothing but confidence. Great things were expected of them, and they fully intended to achieve them.

Under the leadership of Zack Shull, Bob Thompson and Mike Cardenas, the Flyers persevered through a few shaky performances during the regular season. The team rallied around its leaders and kept racking up the wins, performing better as the season progressed.

The defense pulled together early in the season and kept everything under control, led by MVP Matt Thompson, Mike Wetmore, and backed by all-star goalie Mike Cardenas. Scoring leaders Bobby Thompson and Christian Swain racked up the goals whilst the midfielders controlled the play.

The team finished the regular season with a winning record in a tough division and a good seed for the state tournament, along with renewed confidence, determination, and team unity. The Flyers cruised through the first two rounds of the tournament, but finally ran aground against their archenemy, St. John's Prep, in the semifinal match.

The loss was bitter, but when the dust cleared, everyone realized what an exhilarating and successful season it had been. The experience on the field may have been fleeting, but is one that will live on in the memories of the coaches, players, and parents who were all essential parts of the season's success both on and off the field.

This year's Girls Varsity Soccer Team finished the regular season with a record of 13-2-5. After losing ten seniors to graduation the year before, the team reloaded with a mix of talented underclassmen and experienced returnees. Led by tri-captains Sarah Romero, Steph Hicks, and Denise Purpura, the team finished with second place in the brutal Bay State Conference Carey Division with impressive wins over Needham, Braintree, and Weymouth. One of the highlights was a 4-0 thrashing of cross-town rival Marian under the lights at Bowditch Field.

Seniors Steph Hicks, Sarah Romero, Miranda Whynot, and Denise Purpura along with juniors Carmella Ranieri and Julie Devoy were all recognized as Bay State Conference All-Stars for their great performances. Senior goalie Liz Johnson also had an incredible year as she repeatedly came through for the Flyers.

This highly skilled team deserved every bit of success it achieved as it finished an amazing year among the best in the state. The seniors wish the team the best of luck in the future.

Making a Splash

The swimmin' women made quite a splash this season. Led by captains Tate Jerussi, Kara Keating, and April Balboni, the swim team finished the season with a conference record of 6-2-1 with an awesome second place finish at the Conference Meet. At the final meet of the season against traditional rival Natick, the Flyers made history by fighting their way to 93-93 tie. They then swam to the BSC meet. Sending waves through the pool, Framingham dominated the meet until Needham edged ahead by just 12 after the last two events.

The team graduates 10 seniors who, as Coach Holbrook says, have been "the heart of the team." April Balboni, Shannon Call, Julie Cunningham, Ann Guarino, Tate Jerussi, Kara Keating, Jen McCarthy, Nicole Mendenhall, Jineane Musgrave, and Melissa Spinks will all be missed next season. The class of

'99 has provided many sectional and state qualifying swimmers, as well as school record breakers Melissa Spinks, Tate Jerussi, and Nicole Mendenhall. Watch out for the Flyers next season. Juniors Alison Kruger and Rachel Machowsky as well as a strong sophomore class led by Maura Cunningham, Brianne Gloski, and Danielle Orden will carry the team to victory.

On Their Way Up

The 1998 girls varsity volleyball team played its most aggressive season in three years. A new coach, Stephanie Lefever, improved skills and increased enthusiasm, helped to get the team back on its feet. "We're on our way to becoming number one," declared co-captain Sharon Lew.

With five veteran varsity players and seven newcomers, the team pulled its way up the charts. Mali Cooper and Sharon Lew, Christine Dolliver, and Amanda Paules all had exceptional seasons. Altogether, though, each team member set a goal, and at each game she strove to reach it. "We played our hardest against some of the best teams in the state and came very close each time," said co-captain Mali Cooper.

All volleyball players this year were very close. Varsity and junior varsity practiced together most of the time, and everyone helped one another out at games, scoring and officiating. At each home game, a teammate gave her big or little sister a small gift to wish her good luck for the game.

This year was definitely the beginning of many winning seasons to come. Don't forget the cheer that energized the team before each game. "Beat 'em, beat 'em, must defeat 'em, go, go, go, we're the bump, set, spike, we're the Flyers!"

A Successful Season

This was an exceptional year for the Flyer Cheerleaders. The squad came in fourth place nationally and also reclaimed titles at the Baystate, Regional, and State Championships. These results demonstrate the depth and teamwork that make the Flyers squad a perennial favorite.

This year's team was led by senior captains, Jennifer Henning, Nicole Laramie, Jessica Young, and Denise Flores and Coach Sue Pereira. Other seniors included Janelle Shorton, Krissy Wheeler, and Miranda Whynot.

"This was a long and hard season," admitted Young. "We had a lot of pressure on us to reclaim previous titles." In order for the cheerleaders to stay on top, they practiced five days a week for two to two and a half hours a night. However, all the hard work was worth it to them; it was a season to remember. The captains would like to wish the team good luck in seasons to come. FHS Cheerleaders are #1!!!

Dedication and Spirit

The Poms Dance Squad has been an amazing source of spirit. Their performances in football games, rallies, and competitions were choreographed by captains Amy Katz, Alex Vera, and Alicia Johnson with the help of all members of the squad and Coach Jamie Blaine. Other senior squad members include Amy Eisenberg, Steph Dehaan, Jill Idleson, Arlicia Taylor, Felicia Taylor, and Kelly Walker.

The accomplishments of the squad include a second place finish at the UDA competition and the Emmanuel College competition as well as a rank of second in the state. Much of this success can be attributed to the unfailing commitment and dedication of every member of Poms. The girls have been very successful at working together as a team and through the years have formed a bond that will always be held in their memories.

A Season for the Ages

The Boys Basketball team is off to one of its best starts in team history. The Flyers are presently 13-3, and on an eight game winning streak. They have already qualified for the state tournament and sit atop the Bay State Conference in first place. The team is on pace to win their first conference championship.

John Grady's squad is led by a talented group of seniors. The "fab five" starters are co-captains Jon Montcrieff and Greg Paules, Jan "Mucka" Smith, Mike Hickey, and Marquis Harris-Turner. Harris-Turner is second in the league in scoring and is an all-around athlete. Smith leads the team in rebounds and blocks. Hickey is a defensive wizard. Montcrieff runs the show at the point guard position, and Paules is a presence in the paint. Tom Rosoff, Terrell Randle, Tony Gonzalez, Scott Argir, Eric Allen, Justin Jordan, and Shaun "Shaq" Bamforth have also provided quality minutes off the bench.

The Flyers play an aggressive press defense and a run and gun offense that averages nearly 80 points a game. Co-captain Greg Paules states, "Everyone has worked hard and we are looking forward to finishing the season strong and doing well in the state tournament."

Rebounding to Success

After losing many key contributors from last season, the Girls Basketball team knew they would have a tough season ahead of them. However, the team persevered to finish with a record above .500 and secure a tournament spot for the third consecutive year.

The team was led by its captains, seniors Courtney Garron, Steph Hicks, and Bridget Wise as well as Coach Chip DelPrete. Senior Skye Robinson also provided key leadership. Every member of the team put in a lot of effort. "We worked really hard as a team, and we stuck together," explained Hicks.

Though each of the senior members had a great season, some of the best performances came from two of the team's younger members. Junior Lauren Purpura used her height to overwhelm many opponents in gathering points, blocks, and rebounds. Sophomore Rose Krane also had a good season at point guard, scoring many points on her outside shot.

With a strong record, the team earned a 12th seed in the Division I South tournament. Despite a loss in this game, the team still had a terrific season. They also have a bright future ahead of them with many talented underclassmen.

A Team for the Future

This year, the Girls Gymnastics team had a season of rebuilding. This was a young team, with only one senior, and competitions reflected this inexperience. The Flyers worked their hardest and put in time and dedication. However, the girls knew they had their work cut out for them.

Strong performances were expected of the team's tri-captains, senior Miranda Whynot, junior Courtney Moran, and junior Sharon Snell; however, with both Moran and Snell out for some of the meets due to injuries, the team was in for a bumpy ride.

Injuries gave many members a chance to compete. Outstanding performances from team veterans including juniors Laura Elder and Tara Ward, sophomores Panasaya Charenkavanich, Alyssa Finkel, Kristi Hagerty, Jayde Levesque, Jen Marks, and Tracy Sarasohn helped the team greatly. Contributing newcomers included sophomores Lauren Fannon and Missy Gerard and freshmen Missy Gilbert and Shahan Hart.

Whether their record reflects it or not, the team had a successful year; the girls came together and realized what they needed to improve. The Flyers will enter next season as healthy, seasoned veterans who have a great chance of winning many meets. Good luck girls!

A Veteran Team

The Framingham Boys Hockey team has had yet another successful season this year. With a large returning senior class, the Flyers had much leadership and experience. The great leadership was a huge part of this team with captains Jim Brown and Steve Tocci, and assistant captains Mike Campion, Rich Centore, Travis Gross, Chris Hoey, and Tony Seariac leading the way to victory.

The Flyers started the season off well, winning the majority of their games. The team scored easily against many opponents, and they continued to improve defensively with every contest. Despite losses to Brockton and Needham early in the year, the Flyers came back to win the rest of their schedule. On the loss to Needham, senior captain Jim Brown said, "We just have to try to stay positive and pick it up for the rest of our games." The other Flyers agreed, as they worked hard to win the remaining games.

The Flyers have clinched a share of the Bay State League title and qualified for the state tournament. The team hopes to showcase their hard work and defensive strength in the postseason. It has been a respectable season, one for the senior class to remember.

The End of the Beginning

The Girls Hockey team ends its third season of existence. This year the team loses nine seniors, including captains Amanda Torchio and Rachel Katz, Sarah Micciche, Brooke Pollock, Courtney Abastis, Ally Finstein, Jess Stefanini, Jami Brownstein, and Julie Franzini. However, because the remaining players are saying goodbye to the last nine skaters who fought for the team's existence, they're saying goodbye to the beginning.

There are sixteen players left to continue this team. Amongst them are sophomore Katie Cox who averages 3.4 goals a game and freshman Kristen Porter, the second leading scorer. Despite two losing seasons, the girls have kept their spirits high. As captain Rachel Katz said, "The best part is just hockey, is just being able to play."

The seniors will graduate and move on and the pioneers for women's hockey will leave behind a team full of potential, a team who will have the challenge of honoring this tradition. Good luck to future Framingham Girls Ice Hockey Team and remember: ICE COLD INTIMIDATION.

A Bright Future

Although it is not reflected in the record, the Boys Indoor Track team put forth a solid effort this year. They were close to victory many times in a talented Bay State Conference considered to be among the strongest in the state. Senior Captains Brian Hanley, Seth Wolfman, and Kostas Klokalis led the Flyers this season. The team also received senior leadership from many in a strong senior class that held the team together.

Individually many Flyers had successful campaigns. The Flyers had four state qualifiers, including Brian Hanley in the mile, Dustin Evans in the shotput, A.J. Mulvey in the 600 meter and the 4x400 relay team of Mulvey, Brian Presley, Jordan Geathers, and Andre Green that ran the fastest time in the Bay State Conference.

The Flyers have a very bright future with the sparkling performances of many underclassmen. Under the leadership of Coach Gingras and Coach Paterno, these runners should be able to develop and become a team to be reckoned with in the future.

Effort and Dedication

This indoor track season was a good one. Altogether, it was productive as the team experienced great improvement. Though not reflected in the record, the team put effort and dedication into everything it did.

The team was led by its captains, Sarah Delano and Deirdre Baugh. This year, there was a new coach, Amy Williamson, who had been assistant coach under Coach Rooney. She was tough on the team and despite a few disappointments, still enjoyed the season.

The team's star runner, Jen Perry, made it to states, winning the 1,000 at the Class A meet. Though only a freshman, Perry is very talented and clearly has a bright future ahead of her, both in the outdoor track season this spring and in years to come.

Though this season was somewhat disappointing, the girls still appreciate the support of the rest of the high school. They are looking forward to a better outdoor track season. With a strong group of underclassmen and few graduating seniors, the Girls Indoor Track team has a bright future ahead of it.

Exceeding Expectations

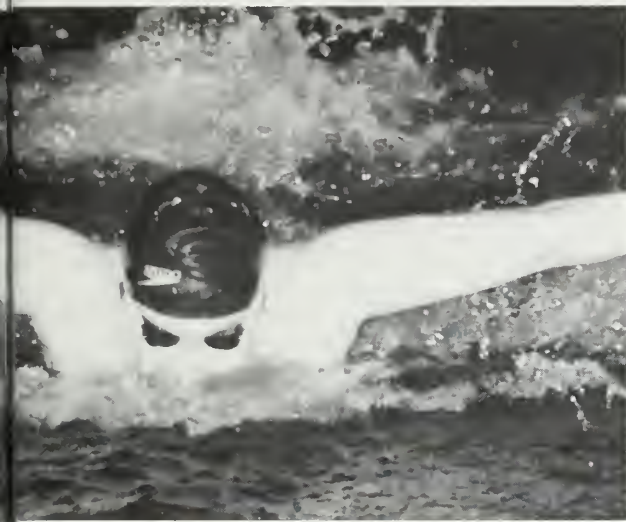

With the graduation of several top-notch seniors, this year's team knew it had big shoes to fill. Led by captains Kurt Garry, Michael Fleischer, Andy Murachver and Tom Walsh, the team finished the season with a 3-2 record in the Bay State Conference. The turning point in the season was the meet against Wellesley. In the last event of the meet, the Flyers' 4x100 freestyle relay team narrowly edged out Wellesley's relay team not only to win the race but to push the Flyers over the top to a 94-91 win. From there, the Flyers solidly beat Needham and Natick to prove that they could still be a BSC powerhouse.

The main strength of the team lay within the sophomore class that includes Justin Kissida, Keith Kelley, Kyle Kelley, Matt Denham, Chris Lee, and Bredon Duca. In addition, sophomore diver Matt Schullman proved to be one of the best in the league. Seniors Jason Prelack and Avi Herscovici and freshmen Billy Crossen and Dan Chan also added talent to the team. With the majority of the team being underclassmen, Framingham swimming has a lot to look forward to in the future.

Striving for the Top

The Boys Wrestling team entered the 1998-1999 season with fierce determination and a willingness to work hard. After a 10-10 record last season, great things were expected of them, and they strived to meet these expectations. The team finished the season with a terrific 13-7 record which included a big win over rival Natick.

The team was led by captains Zach Shull and Andy Goldman, both of whom turned in strong performances. The coaches, Mike and Jack Connery, pushed the team hard, helping them to reach their full potential. Each and every member of the team put in a lot of effort, helping everyone to meet both the team and individual goals.

The team's strong record was highlighted by many great individual performances. Seniors Mark Boorshtein, Mike Cardenas, Goldman, Jeff McAllister, and Dave Shnitzer, junior Jason Habelow, and sophomore P.J. Rovinelli all wrestled at both sectionals and states, turning in good efforts at each of the meets. Boorshtein did exceptionally well, coming in fourth at the all-state meet at heavyweight.

The team will miss its seniors but hopes to continue with another winning season next year. Though they will lose many great senior wrestlers, the underclassmen still believe they can perpetuate the winning tradition.

Hard Work and Fun

This year, the Color Guard had a lot of fun. All of the participants knew one another from the previous year but were able to get to know each other better because of the small size of the team. Throughout the season, the squad received a lot of support from friends, family, and graduates who came to each of the games. Practices were held twice a week at Bowditch, instead of the high school, where there was more room to practice and create new routines.

The squad was led by its captains, senior gun captain Tanya Roudenko and junior flag captain Lauren Manzella. Both captains put in a great deal of effort and added a lot of enthusiasm, guiding the team well. Color Guard will miss its seniors, Roudenko, Jennifer Corliss and Debbie Garland, but hopes to recruit some new underclassmen.

The squad spent a lot of time together, both at practices and outside of school. Even though the members had to be friends because of the time they spent together, they were also friends simply because they wanted to be.

Moving On

Anyone who has attended a rally or a football game knows who she is. Over the past four years, Cynthia Lincoln, the feature twirler, has become a part of the FHS tradition. We have so many memories of Cynthia and her twirling, including the time she lit the #5 of the 50 on fire. We all appreciate the hard work and dedication Cynthia puts into her routines.

Cynthia has been twirling for about ten years, and clearly those long hours of practice have paid off. Throughout her twirling career she has won many awards including three World National gold medals. She has also won the Miss Majorette of the Northeast Region, a combination of events that determines qualification for the world championships.

Julie, the new FHS twirler, has big shoes to fill, but she also has much to look forward to. Cynthia hopes that Julie will give her classmates as much enthusiasm and spirit as she had during her years at FHS.

Looking

Back

Ahead

We're appreciative of the support that the Framingham High School families and area businesses have shown throughout the years. Their assistance enables us to keep the cost of the yearbook within the reach of most students. Within the following pages, families take the time to congratulate their children, to thank them for the happiness, joy and laughter they have brought them over the years, express their pride in their children's accomplishments, and to wish them well in their future. At graduation time, students and parents reflect on the foundation they have received or given. It's a Time to Look Back and a Time to Look Ahead. As Shel Silverstein wrote, "... come and walk awhile with me and share the twisting trails and wondrous worlds I've known. But this bridge will only take you half-way there. The last few steps you'll have to take alone." Parents have provided our foundation and now it is time for us to "set our sails" ... They have given us the maps and now it is time for us to set our course. Friends also express their love and appreciation for each other in the pages that follow. They mention good times that they have shared and the bad times they have helped each other through. They stress the importance of maintaining their friendships and of being there for each other in the future. They question, "Where would we be without our friends?" A popular classic song says it all ... "We Get by with a Little Help from our Friends." The last major group to contribute to our Advertising Section is area businesses. Many have been supportive in various ways over our four years at FHS. Some area businesses provide us with goods, others provide us with services, and the following businesses support us by taking out ads congratulating fellow graduates and wishing us well. As you look through this section, please take note of those who have taken out ads, and as you look ahead into your future, support them whenever possible.
